

EX-MAYOR HACKETT

Mayor Badger Has Tendered Him Appointment As Member Public Works

The successor of Charles F. Shilla next meeting of the City council, as a member of the Board of Public Works will be named at the Mayor Wallace Hackett, Mayor.

Badger has tendered the nomination to the ex-mayor and he has consented to allow the use of his name. Hon. John W. Emory and Harry E. Boynton have been mentioned as candidates but both strongly refused to stand under any circumstances.

The law in such case requires the appointment by the mayor and confirmation by the City council. In case the board fails to confirm the name holds over to the following City council election and is placed on the ballot.

DRISCOLL PITCHED NO HIT, NO RUN GAME

But Twelve Men Up For Ellery Twist ---Knights Win a One-Sided Game.

The Knights of Columbus played it on the Ellery Twist Drill Co. on Friday evening to the tune of 12 to 0. In a game marked by hard hitting and many errors. Driscoll pitched for will throw from right. Reardon singled for the second time and Williams and Dondro scored. Flanagan sent one past first base and Reardon attempted to go home, and was thrown out at the home plate.

The Ellery failed to score. Bruce was struck out, but Heffernan let the ball go by, but he was forced at second on Smart's grounder to McWilliams. Smart stole second but was caught off second and Reed's fly was caught by O'Brien.

Score K. C. 7, Ellery 0. The Knights scored again in the second. Kirvan retired on a foul to Barrett, and O'Brien went to first on Chaisson's fumble. A wild pitch advanced O'Brien to third and he scored on Heffernan's single. Mate's foul fly was caught by Barrett and Driscoll was out on a fly to Chaisson.

The Ellery were out in order, Fritz on a fly to O'Brien and White and Hersey struck out. Score K. C. 8, Ellery 0.

MATES UP!

The Knights and he did not allow a hit, being given excellent support, and it was the first no-hit, no-run game of the series. The Knights broke up the game in the first inning by pounding in seven runs. The game was called at the end of the fourth inning owing to darkness, and it is very likely that the games next week will have to be started earlier. The Knights started the ball rolling with Reardon making a single. Flanagan was out on a fly to Reed in center, and Kirvan pushed out a two-base hit, scoring Reardon, and O'Brien went to first on White's fumble. Heffernan sent out a drive which was good for a single, but by poor fielding was stretched into a home run. Mate's was thrown out at first by White and Driscoll got a single, and a wild pitch advanced him. McWilliams got a pass and Dondro a single. Driscoll scored on Fritz's at many points. On the outskirts of Hampton an interesting incident occurred. As Fox and Russell were passing a farmhouse a sturdy little lad of about 10 years of age stepped from behind some bushes into the middle of the road and, facing the pedestrians, raised his right hand level with his shoulder, palm to the front, thumb resting on the nail of the little finger and the other three fingers upright. The stranger had given Fox and Russell the scouts' salute and they returned the compliment.

Hits and errors gave the Knights two more runs in the third. McWilliams was retired on a fly to Hersey.

The boy then gave his name as Shirley Ware and declared that he was the only boy scout in Hampton. He felt it his duty to meet the walkers as they entered his town and to wish them luck. J. W. Glenister and J. J. Lane of Boston, both of whom are interested in the walk, sent word that they will come to Hampton tomorrow to see how the boys are getting on. This afternoon Sam Fox also received word that a check made out in favor of the boys had reached Portsmouth. The money is the boys' share of the receipts of the Biddford opera house on Monday evening when they talked on their undertaking. Sam made the trip to Portsmouth by trolley.

The scouts had hoped to meet President Taft at Beverly when they pass through that city early next week on the way to Boston and are greatly disappointed that the President returns to Washington on Monday.

U.S. SENATOR'S BOY SCOUTS SPECIAL SHOW PLUCK

Train Arrives Here With Senators And Congressmen From The Frye Funeral

Runs Direct To Washington As Special

A special train with members of the United States Senate passed through this city on Friday on their way to Lewiston to attend the funeral of the late Senator, Hon. W. P. Frye.

The train came direct from Washington without change and was made up of 5 cars including the dining car Boston and Pullman sleepers Nabath, Lunatic and Florida.

Conductor Edward Robert was in charge and engineer Beattie in the cab. Assistant Superintendent Henry Scannel of the Portland Division and Boston and Maine accompanied the party to look after the movement of the train on the Boston and Maine lines. A short delay was occasioned here by a hot box on one of the sleepers which was cared for by the local car inspectors one of which accompanied the train from this city to Portland in case the box gave any further trouble. The special arrived here at 9:27 a. m. and returned at 5:19 p. m.

Make 11 Miles in Shoes Fit For Scrap Heap

Hampton Beach, N. H., Aug. 11—After a display of pluck rarely seen in lads of their age Joe Russell and Sam Fox, the boy scout pedestrians from Portland, Me., bound for San Francisco, reached this ocean resort this afternoon, having walked 11 miles from Portsmouth in shoes fit only for the scrap heap. They have now covered 75 miles of the coast-to-coast trip.

Russell and Fox had hoped to be equipped with new shoes before leaving Portsmouth this morning, but none came from Boston, and rather than fall behind the schedule the boys decided to walk to Hampton in the old footwear.

They were cordially received in Portsmouth, having made $6 by the sale of autograph pictures and having been treated to supper and breakfast by a restaurant proprietor.

Portsmouth's roads are excellent, and as the boys took it easy they experienced no special difficulty until they came upon a newly-made stretch of road. Here Russell suffered intensely, the sharp stones penetrating the thin soles of his shoes and bruising his feet. His angles were also weakened. Fox, too, found the going hard and his feet were somewhat bruised, but neither would call a halt until reaching their day's destination and plodded ahead cheered by people

PLANS FOR WATER EXTENSION

The Board of Public Works are still struggling with the water question. At the meeting this week they had before them, on the invitation of Mayor Badger, Supt. J. S. Whittaker of the Rockingham Light and Power Co., and Dr. A. C. Heffenger, a former water commissioner, who has given the water question considerable study. Dr. Heffenger went over the original plans of the commissioners had for a second stand-pipe at the "Lookout" on South road, and for a pipe line around the southern part of the city. The commissioners at that time got as far as purchasing the site for the stand-pipe, and the city still owns that site now. There plan was to run a twelve-inch main around from the Sherburn station, across the Plains and down South road to the second stand-pipe which would be erected on the "Lookout" site, and then to continue this same size line the entire length of South street to Marcy street, feeding that section of the city and also supplying New Castle. The commissioners got as far as laying a part of the main, but did not have money at that time. Now if the Otis farm springs will provide the additional water necessary, it could be pumped to the Plains and to the new proposed stand-pipe.

The examination of the Otis farm is still being carried on and wells are being driven to give it a more thorough test. If the springs will test a million gallons a day, the Board of Public Works will recommend that it will be purchased, at the price the city now has an option on. The present indications are that the springs there will furnish the water necessary to give this city with its present plant an unlimited supply of water, or at least three million of gallons a day is necessary. It is figured that when the military post at New Castle, for which plans are already drawn, are completed, that at least half a million gallons of water will be used and the city has a contract with the government to supply it, they will have all the water required.

Another project the Board has in mind is the building of a dam at Pevely brook, making a basin that would hold at least five million gallons, and be available for commercial purposes, thus relieving the other service.

The Board are going ahead carefully and will at this time make definite plans for relieving the water situation.

1911 GLIDDEN TOUR

The announcement made last week that the Glidden Tour for 1911 would be a fall tour to the "Land of Dixie" and one that would be organized and conducted along the lines originally conceived by the donor of the trophy has met with enthusiastic and universal approval from all sections of the country, but especially from the southern states through which the tour will pass.

That the good roads movement, already most active in the South, will receive a great stimulus as a result of the tour is a certainty, and the many inquiries already received for full information as to details and conditions indicate a large and representative entry list of individual owners. So great is the interest that has been aroused in the South by the anticipated coming of the tour that a score of southern cities are now vying with each other in presenting their claims for the best roads and best routes, and while the tour cannot be run so as to satisfy them all, a great object lesson is afforded of the necessity for travelable highways and much road improvement is sure to follow.

The National Tours in the past have extended as far north as Maine, Quebec, Canada, and Minneapolis, Minnesota; west to Denver, and southwest to Dallas, Texas, and it is now fitting that the National tour should be run over the national highway to the South, connecting the great city of New York with the live southern metropolis of Atlanta and with Jacksonville, the gateway of Florida's famous winter resorts, which are the Mecca of so many northern tourists who seek the land where it is always summer.

The route of the national highway embraces ten states—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, and presents as varied conditions of scenery as any that can be chosen. In addition, it affords a veritable lesson in early American history. It passes the battlefields of Gettysburg and Antietam and also the Revolutionary battlefields of Guilford Court House and follows the Shenandoah river, which is replete with historic incidents and monuments, including the site of the battle of the Clouds.

Emerging from this beautiful valley the route passes directly across the famous Natural Bridge of Virginia and south of Roanoke there is mountain scenery a plenty, while here one gets in intimate touch with the hardy Virginia mountaineer. The famous tobacco region of northern North Carolina is traversed and fine macadam roads lead through this section south through the cornfields of South Carolina and into the cottonfields of southern South Carolina. Cotton mills are to be found in most of the towns along the line and a prosperity undreamed of a few years ago is everywhere evident.

While prizes of cash or plate will be awarded to the individual winners in the various price divisions of touring cars and runabouts, the Glidden trophy will this year be a team competition. Each team shall consist of three cars, either of touring cars or of runabouts, or of a combination of both, to be designated by the name of the city or town from which the contestants enter, and the Glidden trophy will be awarded to the team which has the least number of points penalty to its debit at the finish of the tour. This team feature will furnish interesting competition throughout the running of the tour. If more than one team is entered from the same city or town, the first team entering shall be known as Team No. One. An entrant has the option of electing the team on which his car shall compete except that a resident of one state cannot be included in a team from another state.

In case any two teams have exactly the same number of points to their debit at the end of the tour, the cars of each team shall be examined by the technical committee as to the general condition of steering gear, brakes, running gear and front and rear axles, and penalties applied for defective condition thereof in accordance with a fixed penalty schedule.

The tour will start from New York on Saturday, Oct. 14, and end in Jacksonville, Oct. 25, consuming ten running days, and covering approximately 1,369 miles, Saturday and Sunday being spent in Atlanta.

Entry blanks and rules have already been issued and may be obtained upon application to the undersigned.

S. M. Dutler,
Chairman.

The splendid charity of Miss Helen M. Gould, which has been frequently recorded, has taken a new form this summer. At intervals of a fortnight Miss Gould has been throwing open her magnificent farm and playground near Tarrytown, N. Y., for a day at a time to poor mothers and their children, who might otherwise not have a day's outing. Special cars transport the guests to and from Miss Gould's estate at her expense, and the visitors are furnished with plenty to eat and also with amusements. On one occasion Miss Gould's guests were from among the poor Italian residents of New York. Later the Volunteers of America made up the party.

THANSGIVING DAY

Last Day Of November Set By President

Washington, Aug. 12—President Taft, it was learned today, will designate Thursday, Nov. 30, as Thanks giving day this year.

It always has been the custom to fix the last Thursday in the month. This year there has been some doubt because November happened to include five instead of four Thursdays.

The White House has been besieged by theatrical managers and those in charge of college football games to settle this doubt, so that definite arrangements could be made for the usual programs of special performance and sports that marks the day.

Bankers throughout the country were said to be anxious that the President should designate Nov. 23 as Thanksgiving day. They claimed that the making of Nov. 30 a legal holiday would seriously interfere with their work, inasmuch as the law requires national banks to make their statements to the treasury department on the first day of each month and a holiday falling on the last of the month would be most convenient.

W. C. T. U.

The members of the W. C. T. U. were guests of Mrs. George Shapleigh at Camp Hideaway, Jenness, Beach, on Wednesday. At noon a basket lunch was partaken of with a fine chowder and coffee furnished by the hostess.

At three o'clock the regular business meeting was held and one name proposed for membership. The party returned home on the five o'clock car, having enjoyed a very pleasant outing.

The next meeting will be a picnic meeting at the home of Miss Maggie Varrell at Rye the fourth Wednesday in August.

NOTICE I. O. O. F.

Osgood Lodge, No. 48, I. O. O. F., will hold an outing at Rand's Grove, Jenness Beach, Wednesday, August 16th (for members of the order only).

There will be a ball game between the Married and the Single Brothers, to be followed by other sports. Music will be furnished by the Veterans' Drum Corps. Tickets, 75 cents, can be purchased from the committee and also at the Grove. Sojourning Brothers invited to attend. Dinner served at 1:30.

TAFT MAY PAY VISIT TO FLEET

Plans To Entertain TOGO

Japanese Admiral Will Be Received Thursday On The Nebraska

Provincetown, Aug. 12.—It is reported here tonight that President Taft may sail over from Beverly in the Sylph to review the North Atlantic fleet during the aeroplane practice scheduled for Monday and Tuesday. The fact that he is so handy with a gun is a fact that is well known. That Admiral Togo is to be a guest of Rear Admiral Osterhaus has given weight to the rumor.

But if the President does come, it is evident that he cannot the same day as the Japanese naval hero, for arrangements have been made by the navy department to bring Admiral Togo from the Charlestown yard to the commander in chief's flagship in Cape Cod bay on a torpedo destroyer next Thursday. The party will leave Charlestown about 10:30 a. m.

Admiral Togo will be given a luncheon on board the Nebraska, which is serving temporarily as Rear Admiral Osterhaus' flagship while the Connecticut is undergoing repairs at Brooklyn.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Beekman Winthrop will be a guest of the fleet on Tuesday. He is going to represent Secretary George von L. Meyer in presenting the battleship with a trophy for general efficiency in the battleship class. The officers and men of the Michigan are jubilant over the news from Washington that their ship has been awarded the emergency pennant for 1911, having reaped the highest combined score in the gunnery and engineering competitions.

Mr. Winthrop, accompanied by Lieutenant Commander Leigh C. Palmer, naval aide to President Taft, will be carried from Boston here in a torpedo destroyer. Lieutenant Commander Palmer will present Capt. Usher with the letter of congratulation sent by President Taft. Capt. Usher will name the nine officers on the Michigan who had the most to do with bringing about the ship's success, and every one of them will get a copy of the President's letter to frame.

The pennant to be awarded the Michigan was woven by the enlisted men of the U. S. S. Maryland, and is on its way across the continent in charge of a messenger from that ship. Admiral Osterhaus issued an order today forbidding the sale of anything but newspapers about the ships. Since the ships arrived, the dealers had been allowed to pursue their business to some extent, although with official sanction, and it is probable that they would have been allowed to continue had not their number increased so fast that their visits to the warships became a nuisance.

Rear Admiral Howard, who has had his headquarters on the cruiser Washington, took his things ashore today, and the vessel will be given a thorough house cleaning. He has five days before he is to report to Washington, and it is not known whether he will return to the cruiser or may be assigned to take the vessel to Hampton Roads for inspection. The acting secretary of the navy sent a letter of commendation today to the officers and men of the armored cruiser North Carolina for the intelligent and zealous training through which they won for that ship the engineering trophy of the navy.

GENERAL ORDERS FOR CAMP

The following orders have been issued for the regular encampment of the coast artillery corps.

In compliance with Par. 1, General Orders, No. 12, the Adjutant General's Office, this command will march to Fort Constitution Sept. 5, 1911, and participate in the Joint Army and Militia Coast Defense Exercise, Sept. 5 to 12, inclusive.

If the Commanding Officer of the First Company will have the baggage of his command in readiness for transportation at 8 o'clock a. m., and be prepared to march his company at 8:45 a. m. on Sept. 5.

III. The Second Company will leave Lakeport at 6:10 a. m.; the Third Company will leave Exeter at 8:45 a. m.; and the Fourth Company will leave Dover at 7:03 a. m. on Sept. 5.

IV. Commanding Officers of the Second, Third and Fourth Companies will upon their arrival at the Portsmouth R. R. Station, report their commands to the Adjutant on Railroad Square.

V. The olive drab service uniform with leggings, campaign hats, shoulder tent rolls, canteens and haversacks will be worn into camp Sept. 5. Overcoats, the full dress and the blue denim fatigue uniforms, complete, will be packed with the baggage, and company commanders will require each man to provide himself with three pairs of white gloves. The khaki uniforms and the olive drab caps will not be taken on this tour of duty. Officers will wear the olive drab service uniforms, with campaign hats, tan leather puttees, high tan shoes and revolver on Sept. 5. Haversacks and canteens will not be worn by officers. Officers will have the dress and full dress uniforms in camp.

VI. The senior officer on duty with troops en route will be held responsible for the conduct of the men and their condition upon arrival at destination.

VII. First Sergeants will prepare their morning reports in Morning Report Books while en route and submit same to the Adjutant upon arrival at Portsmouth.

VIII. Baggage details will consist of not more than three men, including Quartermaster Sergeants.

By order of MAJOR HOYT
I. H. WASHBURN,
First Lieut. C. A. C., N. H. NG.,
Adjutant.

YORK BEACH 6 NEWMARKET 3

York Beach, Me., Aug. 11.—The beach baseball team defeated the Newmarket team this afternoon, 6 to 3. For the locals Robert Weare pitched good ball. Young, Barnes, Barrett, Kennedy and Priestly played a good fielding game. Lerner, Shanahan and McKone excelled at bat. The score:

NOTES FROM BOSTON YARD

At 4 o'clock the tender Yankton steamed up to the yard for supplies for vessels of the fleet, and having as a passenger Lieut. Commander John V. Grenslade, executive officer of the battleship Ohio, who was transferred to the Chelsea naval hospital for treatment.

At 5 o'clock the gunboat Castine, parent of the submarine flotilla, with the tender ship Severn and the submarines Bonita, Cuttlefish, Grayling, Narwhal, Salmon, Stingray and Tarpon, came up the harbor and all were given berths at the yard.

During the morning the big naval tug Patuxent, which is now making its headquarters at the local yard, took a detail of 50 men from the receiving ship Wabash down to the ships at Provincetown. A detail of 15 sailors arrived from the Portsmouth navy yard and were assigned to the battleship New Jersey to complete its crew. The New Jersey, which has been modernized during its more than a year's stay, will join the fleet within the next fortnight.

Battleship Georgia, which is still in the drydock, will remain for several more weeks, it is reported. The Georgia's crew are furnishing one of the attractions at the yard almost daily in battalion drill, and twice they have gone on "hikes" in full marching order through Somerville. The ship's Filipino band, which accompanies the men on their marches attracts great attention.

Lieutenant Commander Noble E. Irwin, U. S. N., who has recently resigned Miss Sarah G. Norris of Dover, Kansas, reported yesterday afternoon as the aid to Capt. DeWitt Coffman

Stanage, Detroit's Backstop, is In Fair Way to Make Record for The Number of Games Caught

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 12.—It begins to look as if Catcher Stanage is to achieve his ambition of setting a new record for the number of games caught in the American league. He took part in ninety-six of the first 100 games, and he is still holding down the job. In addition to his reliability, Stanage is doing excellent work with the stick, his batting average hovering around .275. While making 341 official trips to the plate Stanage made twelve sacrifice hits and scored thirty-three runs. He has one stolen base to his credit, but is likely to double that record before the season ends.

U. S. N., commandant of the yard. To complete the work on the battleships Georgia, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Illinois, the scout cruiser Birmingham and the supply and refrigerating ship Celtic at the yard, three shifts of workmen are being used to carry on the work on some of them day and night, and so many men have been called in that the labor board's eligible lists of machinists and boiler-makers have been entirely exhausted and the yard officers are looking for men to come in. In fact, it was yesterday decided that advertisements for about 40 boiler-makers would be put in the newspapers if men were not obtained within a few days.

HON. WARREN BROWN HAS 70TH BIRTHDAY

Exeter, N. H., Aug. 11.—This is the 70th birthday of Hon. Warren Brown Hampton Falls' most prominent citizen. He was born in that town, where he has always resided, the only child of John B. and Sarah M. (Leavitt) Brown and the descendant of several of the first settlers of Hampton.

He was educated at district schools the once flourishing Rockingham academy at Hampton Falls and at Phillips academy at Andover. He had hardly attained his majority when by his father's death he succeeded to the ownership of the home-stand farm one of the largest and best in this section. Upon it in 1879 Mr. Brown erected a stately home, the material being brought up Hampton river in the last schooner to ply that stream.

Farming has always been Mr. Brown's chief pursuit, but he has other interests in Hampton, Dover and elsewhere and from its organization until its absorption by the New Hampshire traction company he was president of the Exeter, Hampton and Amesbury street railway. He was long president of the New Hampshire agricultural society, a trustee of the New England agricultural society, which he has served as treasurer since 1893 and for nearly 25 years he has been a trustee of New Hampshire on the board.

He has written much for the agricultural press and other newspapers and he is the author of the admirable history of Hampton Falls published in 1890.

Mr. Brown early became influential in republican politics. He has served Hampton Falls as chairman of selectmen, moderator and representative. In 1873 he was a state senator; in 1879-81 a member of Gov. Nathaniel Head's executive council and in 1884 a delegate to the republican national convention. He has long been a member of the republican state committee. He is a Mason of Temple rank.

On Jan. 1, 1867, Mr. Brown married Miss Sarah G. Norris of Dover, Kansas, reported yesterday afternoon as the aid to Capt. DeWitt Coffman

Egyptian Smokers and Madness.

An Egyptian smoker of hashish is even a more helpless slave than the Chinese opium fiend. He knows that in the end he will become a madman, yet he rushes toward the awful goal with unrelenting speed. With the strange exaltation which first comes to the smoker he feels himself floating from cloud to cloud or alighting in the gardens of palaces all his own. Most of the hashish which Egypt consumes comes from Greece. From the husks of the hemp seeds and the tender tops of the hemp plant the Greeks manufacture a greenish powder whose fumes bring the ecstasy its victims desire.

Shapely Swedes.

The Swedes are probably the tallest people in Europe and have on the whole erect, handsome figures. To some extent this advantage is due to physical exercise, for Swedish gymnastics are compulsory in the elementary schools, and the system is much used in other schools and colleges.—London Telegraph.

A ROPE OF WATER.

Berthelot's Test That Showed Its Tensile Strength.

THE COHESION OF MATTER.

Perfect Planes of Metal or Glass When Brought into Contact Will Adhere to One Another as Though They Were Glued Together.

It is well known that liquids are among the least compressible of substances; this in spite of the fact that they have the property of conforming to any shape of vessel or of yielding to any forces, no matter how small, which tend to change only their shape.

Thus, to squeeze water into nine-tenths of its volume under ordinary conditions would require a pressure of no less than 3,000 atmospheres, or 45,000 pounds, to the square inch. This property of being almost incompressible is best illustrated perhaps by an experiment tried centuries ago, wherein an attempt was made to compress water by filling a leaden shell with it and then, after closing, hammering and squeezing the shell. The only effect of the tremendous pressures produced in this way was to cause the water to penetrate the minute pores of the lead and exude in drops like perspiration on the outer surface of the shell. The same effect was found for a silver shell.

But, while it is a familiar fact that liquids will resist an enormous force of compression, the companion fact that they are also capable of withstanding tension, is not so generally known. At first sight this statement may appear ridiculous. When water may be so readily dipped from a pail or poured from one vessel to another, how can it be capable of withstanding tension?

If, however, we prevent change of form we find that pure water is capable of bearing fifty atmospheres of tension, or 750 pounds to the square inch. If it was possible, then, to utilize this property by making a "rope" of water we should find it capable of sustaining a good fraction of the weight that could be borne by an ordinary rope of the same size. But it must be admitted that the task of making a rope out of such material would be rather difficult, to say the least, notwithstanding the fact that it possesses this desirable property of tensile strength. Because of its inability to resist a deforming force it would have to be inclosed in a tube; but, while it would have been in condition to withstand compression, as from a piston in the tube, any attempt at "stretching" the liquid in this way would simply result in pulling away the piston from the water surface.

However, this tensile strength was actually found by Berthelot in the following way: A strong glass tube sealed at one end and drawn out very fine at the other was filled nearly full of water and then closed. The tube was then cautiously heated until the water had expanded and completely filled it. It was then slowly and carefully cooled back to its original temperature, when it was found that the water had not contracted, but still filled the tube.

It is almost a universal law that a small extension in volume of a body requires the same magnitude of force to produce it as to cause a similar amount of compression, the forces, however, being tension in one case and compression in the other. With this law in mind it is readily seen that the water that now fills the tube must be under tension, since previously at the same temperature it did not quite fill the tube—that is, it has actually been stretched or expanded beyond its normal volume for this temperature, and from our knowledge of the forces that would be required to produce the corresponding compression we can figure out what this tension must be.

The ultimate particles or molecules of matter we believe to be held together by powerful forces, known variously as cohesion or adhesion, but being in any case forces of attraction, and these forces tend to prevent any expansion of the matter, be it solid or liquid. It might be thought that these forces would cause two bodies in contact to adhere to each other, but particles have to be so near together to be acted upon by them that it is difficult to bring bodies into such close contact that an appreciable area of one is within this distance of the other.

However, two clean pieces of lead can readily be pressed so closely together that they will adhere, and a set of copper cubes was once made with such true faces that when a dozen of them were piled one on top of the other the series adhered together so well that the whole could be lifted from the top one. But the best example is furnished by pieces of optical glass whose surfaces have been worked so plane that when pressed together they will as readily break at some other spot as at this plane.

Perhaps it is unfortunate that these useful forces, which hold all matter together and keep it from collapsing into impalpable dust, are confined in their action to such a limited range. If this were not so, a break of any sort could be fixed by merely bringing together the broken ends. Glue of any kind would be unnecessary.

But even this state of affairs would have its drawbacks. A book laid on a table would have to be piled off with a wedge, and the same instrument would be required to open it. Everything would stick to everything else, and the pleasure of walking would be lost in the tedious process of prying first one foot and then the other from the viselike grip of the sidewalk or the floor.—Boston Post.

TENNIS COSTUME.

Up to Date Girl Wears Trouserine Skirt.

There is no suggestion of beauty or grace certainly to be connected with the trouserine tennis skirt, but it is practical and makes for expert play, therefore the girl who goes in for a serious game often sacrifices appearances to comfort.

The material used is a lightweight black and white checked cloth, and the trousers effect is entirely hidden when away from the tennis court by straps that hold the concealing front panel in place.

The skirt waist is of striped flannel, with collar and cuffs of black molra silk.

of pale gold satin patterned in a floral design worked out in black and orange colorings.

Every woman's purse will not allow her to purchase such a sartorial luxury, but it is a stunning negligee for the fortunate possessor of a well filled purse.

Sleeve of the Moment.

There can be no question that simplicity will not be the distinguishing feature of the sleeve of the fall. A few weeks ago nearly all bodices and blouses were made with the Asiatic sleeve—i. e., cut in one piece with that garment and minus seams. In the new modes the sleeves are put in separately with just a little fullness, and nearly all sleeves have a bit of black velvet trimming applied in the bandings, pipings, panelings or buttons. Perhaps the smartest and newest sleeve is the Breton, which will be much exploited. It reaches below the elbow, is straight and wide and is often made of different material from the bodice. In evening gowns this feature is effectively carried out in beaded and jetted nets, embroidered tissues and in laces of all kinds.

With-decollete bodices sleeves are worn small, so small that sometimes they seem quite absent.

Dr. Shaw's Influence on Norway.

Although the Rev. Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, American suffragist, could not get permission from the authorities in Christiania to give lectures in churches, it develops the Norwegians are planning to give greater opportunities to women who must earn their own livelihood. A bill has been introduced providing liberally for women. The measure says they shall have access on the same conditions as men to offices of the state with a few exceptions.

THE PUBLIC'S DUE.

Decent treatment is due the public. There will survive and there still control large numbers of the "divine" and "vested right" managers who have learned nothing and will learn nothing until the great public asserts its rights more forcibly than in the past. These managers must learn that the corporations are not the masters but the servants of the public, that their master is not going to destroy them so long as they remain servants and that their rights as servants are going to be scrupulously respected, as their assumption of mastership will be relentlessly suppressed. — William G. McAdoo.

LOBSTERS PROMISE TO BE PLENTY.

"Twill be a big year for the lobster industry in 1912. It cannot be told now how many there will be caught, but there will be many, many millions placed in the water by the fish hatchery men.

This is indicated by the immense number of seed lobster that have been gathered along the coast by the United States fisheries steamer Ganiet on Thursday when she left Portland she had a thousand seeders had been secured in Portland alone.

While the greater part of the seeders are secured from the dealers in Portland, there are many others that are taken at various places along the Maine coast. How big the total will be cannot be told now, but it will be far up in the thousands. All these lobsters will be scraped of their seed when they are ripe and will then be placed back in the water. The seed in true will be hatched at the Boothbay hatchery and the fry, when they have attained sufficient size, will be planted at various points along shore.

During the season just closed it was estimated that fully 150,000,000 lobster fry were planted along the shores of Maine. In 1912 this number will be greatly increased and it would not be surprising if the number were doubled.

BIRD'S EYE VIEWS

Some of these chaffeurs who land beifesses may redeem themselves by turning out a la Lightning Conductor.

The sudden increase in the price of Crawford Nitch shows the increasing prevalence of the idea that the state is an easy mark.

Those rubber mills in Rhode Island, which are about to resume operations again, seem to be running on rather an elastic schedule.

Some of the railroads of the country are henceforth to have no women in their service, as they seem to be in a position to have the last word.

It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that Admiral Togo should meet some of his brother officers serving in cog as stewards during his inspection of navy yards.

Henry Clay has retired from the Union Pacific directorate, but it need not be supposed for a moment that a railroad of two more or less is of any consequence to the little American capitalist.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

Taft's Courseless Veto. The announcement that the President will veto the statehood bill is safe, very brilliant, clean and innocent of the failure of Congress.

pass the Nelson amendment striking out the judiciary recall provision of the Arizona constitution, speaks well for his courage. The bill can evidently be passed over his veto, and what the two States, participating in this election of 1912, will be as hostile to him as the Oklahomans were three years ago, because of his freshly cast aspersions on their organic law. Six electoral votes are thus involved. These territories gave Republican majorities in the delegate election three years ago, perhaps for the purpose of fooling the Republican Congress into admitting them; but at all events they were debatable territory particularly New Mexico. They will not be in 1912.

Several presidential contests have turned on narrower margins than this. The argument which led many Republican senators to yield, that Arizona once admitted, could do as it pleased anyhow. Mr. Taft has also heard. In all these circumstances, with admission inevitable, his decision is commendably plucky.—Boston Herald.

Beavers in Adirondacks

The efforts to prevent the extermination of the beaver in the Adirondacks have been so successful that there are now more than 20 large beaver colonies on the Raquette river alone, and there is fear of serious damage to popular timber through the activities of the busy little fellows.

The beavers began gnawing down popular trees on the river bank below Axton and have gradually worked up stream until now they have ascended the river for 10 miles. They eat the bark of the popular when they can find it and prefer it to that of any other tree. That same timber is also much sought after by the lumber and timber dealers who sell it to the pulp companies, but in the lumber operations along the Raquette the beavers have outstripped the lumbermen.

The size of the trees seems to have little effect on the activity of the beaver. They attack a tree 12 inches in diameter as willingly as one of three inches and their methods of operations are the same in both cases. They start about a foot or two above the ground and gnaw down the trunk, gradually working into the centre until the tree is ready to fall.

They direct the course of the falling trees in the same manner as a woodsman does, that is, by cutting deeper into the tree on the side on which it is to fall than on the other. Should the tree in falling become lodged in the branches of some other tree the beaver fells another tree, so hit and dislodged. An example of just such work was seen by a party of fishermen who recently passed the Raquette.

There was a fine stand of poplar on the north bank of the river about a mile above the head of the falls and there the little animals have been especially active. Trees more than 12 inches thick have been felled at points some distance from the river, cut up into short lengths and rolled to the river edge. Then they are pushed down the slides into a bay or eddy, where they are left until needed by the beaver.

Near the edge of some of the slides large piles of the brush cut from the fallen trees have been heaped. The brush is used to build dams and also stored away for the winter supply of food.

It is sunk to the bottom of the ponds and weighed down with stones. Then in the winter when everything is frozen solid and ice lies thick everywhere the provident beaver is sure of his food supply.

There was a time when the appearance of fishermen along the streams sent the beavers scurrying places of safety, but through the protection that has so long been accorded them they have grown fearless of man. Even the chug of a motor boat does not scare them much and people can approach close to them before they will slide into the water and make for their hiding place.

The other day while a guide was rowing up the Raquette he came near enough to a beaver to have touched him with his casting rod. Then the beaver entered the water and swam across the river, passing under the boat in full view of the occupants.—New York Sun.

LOCAL EVENTS OF LONG AGO

Sixty years ago, during the first week of August the gas works on Daniel street were approaching completion and the main pipe was being laid through Daniel and Market streets. Dealers in gas fixtures were advertising to furnish the same, having received new stock, and competent workmen for the new business.

The announcement that the President will veto the statehood bill is safe, very brilliant, clean and innocent of the failure of Congress.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Gleanings From Files of Portsmouth Chronicle

The rebels on Saturday had not destroyed the few houses remaining in Hampton. They are encamped at Great Bethel. It is reported that a rebel captain who penetrated within the line of pickets at Newport News declared the place too strong to be attacked.

We learn that the Methodists in this vicinity will hold their annual camp meeting on the same ground occupied last year near Newmarket Junction, commencing on Monday next, August 19, and continuing until the end of the week.

The office of the Bangor Democrat which is a Secession sheet, was visited on Monday at 1 o'clock by a crowd who entered the office during an alarm of fire, cleaned it out completely and burned the contents in the street. The editor escaped unharm. The paper is more generally known as the Union—the name of its former daily issue.

Among the first to install the use of gas for lighting purposes in 1861 were the firms of J. C. Carr, Charles D. Meyers, Daniel Knight & Co., W. J. Laighton, W. N. Lisle, Oren Bragdon, George W. The largest steamer in the world, the Eclipse, was being built in 1861 at Louisville, Kentucky, the length being three hundred and fifty feet with a water wheel forty-two feet in diameter.

In 1851 the editor of the New York Mirror received an anonymous communication fastened with a diamond pin. How about 1911?

State street was being extended to Cass street in 1861, Aug. 16. During the same month Governor Dinwiddie of our state had visited at Rye and having previously regarded the location as of a poor, rocky, uncultivated town, changed his opinion after having enjoyed the better acquaintance of the place.

George Emery of York paid a costly visit to Dover on Friday and he is now trying to locate a gold watch and $10 in money. The rosy wine came fast for George and he woke up in a back yard with the pockets of his clothing empty—even the gold ring from his finger was missing.

He was unable to describe his companions and the police will have hard work to straighten things out for George.

In August, 1861, the citizens of Portsmouth were in danger of losing the service of the telegraph. An appeal was being made to induce our city to take thirty shares of the capital stock of the telegraph company at one hundred dollars per share. This subscription would ensure the retention of the office in this city.

Dover and Alton Bay were to be given railroad communication in August, 1861, and the matter of direct railroad from Portsmouth to Dover was being warmly agitated by our citizens.

The Applodore House at the Isles of Shoals, was in its early days of prosperity in 1861. The fine packet boat Wave, F. W. Becker, captain, made daily trips to the Shoals on the arrival of the train from Boston. Thomas B. Laighton was proprietor at Applodore.

The Concord railroad operated two trains daily, Portsmouth to Raymond, at 7 o'clock a. m. and 7.30 p. m., from which latter town stages took passengers to Manchester. A stage from Raymond to Concord ran twice weekly on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Such were the methods of travel in 1861.

The subject of a new bathing establishment was being talked of in August, 1861, and for the comfort of old and young it was suggested that plans could be laid whereby hot baths could be included in the new entertainment, recommending them. Today I willingly confirm all I then said and add that the cure this remedy effected has been permanent.

DANCING AND THE PLAY GROUNDS

Should It Be One Of The Play Ground Pastimes?

What place has folk dances in the play ground movement?

This question is frequently asked, and justly. The answer comes from such leaders as Jane Addams, Dr. Gulick and Joseph Lee:—Dancing in itself is happiness. It is a safely valve of moral value, in that it affords an opportunity for the innocent expenditure of joyous energy. Folk dances constitute a positive moral force, a social energy, welding into a unified whole, those of diverse conditions and occupations. The recognition of national dances of various people not only helps the child the stranger to understand his ancestral setting, but helps him to express himself in his own relation to the New World.

Within the past few years with the birth and growth of the play ground movement there has come a revival of interest in more nominal forms of social activities and impulse as find expression in gymnastics and folk dancing. Folk dancing restores to our young people their birthright of joyous play as a safeguard against the artificial of the present day. With the thought of putting folk dancing within reach of every growing child no pains have been spared in collecting and adapting work to schools and play grounds. Joseph Lee, the president of the National Play Ground Association, says: "The thing that most needs to be understood about play is that it is a necessity—it is something the child must have if he is ever to grow up."

Dancing of the right sort, says William Bishop Owen, is for an individual a splendid form of bodily exercise; an expression of the inherited rhythms of body and mind leading to emotional control, a diverting recreation, a real aesthetic experience—in a word a legitimate kind of play which our education ought not to be complete without.

It is possible by means of gymnastic games and folk dances to develop all the muscles of the body and to secure a great physiological benefit. Dr. Gulick says there is the same difference between the performance of muscular movements for the mere sake of exercise, and that of folk dancing, which expresses an idea, a set of feeling, a social whole; as there is between incoherent shouting which exercises the vocal cords and the lungs, and the intelligent speaking or singing which portrays the soul itself.

DANCING AND THE PLAY GROUNDS

Should It Be One Of The Play Ground Pastimes?

What place has folk dances in the play ground movement?

This question is frequently asked, and justly. The answer comes from such leaders as Jane Addams, Dr. Gulick and Joseph Lee:—Dancing in itself is happiness. It is a safely valve of moral value, in that it affords an opportunity for the innocent expenditure of joyous energy. Folk dances constitute a positive moral force, a social energy, welding into a unified whole, those of diverse conditions and occupations. The recognition of national dances of various people not only helps the child the stranger to understand his ancestral setting, but helps him to express himself in his own relation to the New World.

HAMPTON BEACH CASINO.

James Kennedy Company.

Possessing a remarkable personality, an excellent stage presence, and unlimited ability as an actor and a singer, it is no wonder that Mr. James Kennedy has endeared himself to the past to local theatre-goers, at Hampton Beach. Unlike most artists Mr. Kennedy does not rely too much on himself, but has surrounded himself with a company of clever artists. They are to return for another week and will present two comedy dramas next week. "The Girl in the Audience" will be the bill the first three days of the week and "O'Flynn in Mexico" will be the attraction the last three days.

In both of these Mr. Kennedy will have plenty of scope for his seemingly unlimited talent, and this applies almost equally well to the members of the company.

Miss Millicent's Neighbor

How Curiosity Got the Better of Her

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Miss Millicent Elliott stood on her side porch and looked disapprovingly at the yard which adjoined her own. It was a neglected garden, overgrown with plants and weeds, while a forest of sunflowers concealed the tumble-down chicken house. Unpruned shrubs gave witness that some careful hand had once planted a garden here and that sloth and indifference had let it run to decay.

The house, too, was shabby, with peeling paint and blinds sagging from their rusty hinges. On the front porch there was a comfortable painted rocking chair, and sitting therein with his feet elevated to the porch railing was a large, shaggy looking man who was apparently reading the morning newspaper. As a matter of fact, his keen gray eyes were looking straight over the edge of his paper at Miss Millicent, and a wry smile was curving his lips, half concealed by a grizzled beard.

"Shifflers!" sniffed Miss Millicent as she went inside her immaculate little house, but her lips trembled as she uttered the word.

She stepped briskly to and fro making a chicken pie. Her kitchen was spotless, and she worked with a neat deftness that left no disorder in its wake. Presently a knock came at the door and was immediately followed by a stout woman who wore a checked sunbonnet over her glowing cheeks.

"My, but it's hot, Millicent!" she gasped as she sank pantingly into a chair by the open window.

"Florie was saying only this morning that you oughtn't to keep your place looking so nice, Millicent."

Millicent turned her sweet contented face to her caller. "Why not?" she asked calmly.

"Why, because it makes Captain Ben's place look all the worse!" cried

SHE STOOD THERE MOTIONLESS.

Mrs. Benson, the words fairly tumbling out of her eager lips. "Ain't it a disgrace the way he's come down and not lifted his finger to fix up the place?"

"Perhaps he isn't ready to do anything," evaded Millicent, picking over strawberries with slender brown fingers. Her dark lashes swept the smooth oval of her olive tinted cheek where a little flush came and went. Mrs. Benson made a note of the flush to tell her daughter that Millicent Elliott was not so indifferent to Captain Ben Perry's return as she appeared to be.

"He's waiting a good long time. Why, he's been home six months hasn't he? Came home the first of the year and has lived like a hermit ever since. What does he say about it?" asked Mrs. Benson cunningly.

"Captain Perry hasn't mentioned the subject to me," said Millicent calmly. "Are you doing up any cherries this year, Ellen?"

"Twenty-four quarts," said Mrs. Benson, with a baffled glance at the younger woman. "I must be going home now. I've got to get dinner. I bet you how the captain gets along all alone. He must eat sometimes and yet he seems to be sitting out there on the porch most of the time. Somebody said he ate down to the hotel. Does he?"

"How should I know?" asked Millicent rather crisply.

Mrs. Benson darted a keen glance of displeasure at Miss Elliott's behavior. She opened the door that she might have a clear way for flight. "I thought maybe you ought to know something about his affairs, Millicent," she said meaningly, and she slipped outside and banged the door shut.

In the kitchen Millicent was smiling over her strawberries; it was a queer little smile, mingled of triumph, bitterness and regret. Presently it was all regret for she was thinking of that distant day when she had sent handsome young Ben Perry about his business, and he had straightway gone to sea and vowed he would never see her again. Millicent learned too late that the feeling she had thought was coquetry was love and that the departure of Ben Perry was the turning point in her happiness.

Ben did not return to Little River. His people moved away to another village, and she heard indirectly that he was in command of a large schooner, in the coasting trade. Then one day, six months before, it was announced that Captain Ben Perry had fallen heir to the little house next door to Millicent Elliott's and was expected home. He did come there to live, and Millicent met him on the street the next day, and because her heart was beating so trippingly she ignored his attempt at greeting and passed him swiftly by with uplifted chin.

How he spent his time Little River conjectured whenever it met at post-office, sewing society or mothers' meeting. His whole careless mode of housekeeping furnished gossip for nine times nine days.

Just as Miss Millicent was concluding her solitary dinner she saw her neighbor emerge from his shadowy porch and stride down the overgrown path to the gate. A moment later he was swinging down the road toward the hotel.

As if giving way to a long repressed impulse, Millicent left the house and stole down through her little orchard to come out at last at the farthest corner of Captain Perry's domain. Here was a break in the fence, and she slipped through and plunged into a thicket of raspberry bushes. When she came forth she was scratched and bleeding and her neatly arranged hair hung in rippling disorder over her ears.

"Of all the shifflers!" gasped Millicent as she found her way up to the back door of the house. It was nearer than she had hoped to find it, and when she had lifted the door latch and found herself in the kitchen of the house she exclaimed with wonder at its shipshape appearance. The stove was brightly polished and every pot and pan hung upon its appointed hook. It was all as snug as the galley of a ship.

The sitting room was cool and cozy, with a smell of fragrant tobacco. There were large comfortable chairs and piles of newspapers and books. On the mantelpiece a large clock ticked loudly, and Millicent fancied that its round face watched her curiously.

She opened another door and stood petrified with astonishment. Here was the little bedroom of the master of the house, and on the immaculate cover of his dressing table was an old-fashioned photograph of Millicent herself. After her first gasp of surprise she stood there motionless, her heart throbbing heavily, her eyes shining strangely.

All at once there was the clang of the closing gate and firm steps on the path. Captain Ben was returning. Millicent gazed wildly around and opened the door which she thought led into the kitchen to find herself at the foot of the back stairs. At the sound of steps on the porch she drew the door close and stood panting with fright.

The front door opened and closed, and Captain Ben came into the sitting room whistling cheerily. Millicent heard him slap a bundle of papers down on the table and the inter of the scratch of a match and the smell of tobacco. If he would only seek his front porch, as was his custom, and thus permit her to escape by the back way, but he did not. He settled himself in a creaking chair, and Millicent heard the rustle of his newspaper.

She glanced up the dark stairway. Once up there she might conceal herself until Captain Ben went out again when she might escape to her own domain.

She leaned forward and cautiously removed her little slippers; then, feeling like a thief, she crept softly up the stairs to the upper floor, which was quite bare of furniture. She heard Captain Ben arise and walk around the room. He even went into the unused east wing and tried a door there. Then he paused in the lower hall, as if pondering whether to go up stairs.

Did he suspect her presence there or the presence of an interloper on his premises? Had she left any telltale evidence of her visit below?

At last he went back into the sitting room, and she heard him "waiting softly."

It was stifling hot upstairs, where the sun had poured all day through the shuttered windows, and Millicent felt quite faint as she sat on the top step and leaned her head against the wall, while the thunder rolled and the lightning flashed sharply. Then came the rain in silver javelins that rattled on the roof of the east wing and drummed a tune against the window panes.

When the rain was over and the sun peeped palely forth Captain Ben's voice came up the stairs with startling suddenness.

"Why don't you come down, Millicent?" he asked quietly.

So he had known she was there all the time! Now he was aware that she had entered his house and pried into his rooms just as a common gossip might have done!

"Millicent," he repeated softly, "I have waited a long time for you. Won't you come to me now?"

And Millicent, struggling between love and pride and a sense of shame, went down the front stairs and into Captain Ben's waiting arms.

"Saw you when you got caught in the briars," explained the captain softly. "I was coming back, and then I went on. I guessed you hadn't time to leave when I did come back, and I knew you were here, heard the seventh stair creak as you went up. I came back to find myself your neighbor and that you wouldn't speak, and I made up my mind to anchor here for awhile. I thought maybe you'd stayed single because you didn't find any one you liked, and so you might as well like me, if you could."

"Why, I always have, Ben," whispered Millicent. "I couldn't like you any better, Ben."

TIMELY HINTS FOR FARMERS

Farmers Not Dairy-men.

The trouble with the dairy business today, beyond a question of doubt, is that it is being carried on by farmers, not dairy-men, men who know little or nothing about the profit or loss of the animals they are keeping. This, coupled with their lack of knowledge in care and feeding of such stock, results in a very poor average earning for the ordinary milk cow. It would be better for all concerned if more men made dairying a business. As for the small holder and renter, he certainly cannot afford to keep poor cows, for it has been demonstrated most thoroughly that the poor cow actually brings about a loss to her keeper instead of a profit and "a few good cows, if any at all," should be his motto. I believe one of the reasons why so many farmers use inferior sires in their herds is that they are not in the dairy business, but that it is a side issue and, therefore, they feel they cannot afford a better sire. This, we know, is a great mistake and perhaps is the one most harmful to the industry from both a local and a national standpoint.—A. L. Haecker.

Farm Wisdom.

Now, please don't let the mower rattle all to pieces. Keep it well oiled and every nut screwed up tightly, and don't let the knives or guards get dull.

When using a lantern around the barn it should always be hung on a safe hook and never left where the cattle can kick it over. Speak to the hired man about it.

If you have been using long ladders take them down before you go to bed. May come up a big wind and smash your ladders. They cost money these days.

Look up the thing that rattles on the wagon or carriage. Do it right off. May save you a breakdown or a trip to town for the bolt or nut that comes off and is lost.

Prop swinging barn doors open, no matter whether the wind blows or not. You can't tell when it will, and slamming doors lead to broken doors, and that means loss.—Farm Journal.

The Small Fruits.

During July and August is the best time to set out a strawberry bed to provide that delicious fruit for future years. The quantity of raspberry, blackberry and other small fruits can be doubled if you will bend down the canes and branches now until the ends touch the earth, where they should be secured by a stone or peg. They will soon send out roots. Early in September the cane or stock must be separated from the parent plant, about a foot above the new root, and the new plants transplanted to permanent positions.

POULTRY HOUSE

ROOSTS AND NESTS

Removable Fixtures an Aid to Cleanliness.

One of the chief requisites of success with poultry is clean quarters. A conveniently arranged house is least likely to be neglected, hence it is important that roosts and nests be constructed and arranged properly, as they are the main fixtures, writes N. S. Grubb in Farm and Fireside. Roosts require frequent oiling or whitewashing in order to keep vermin in check. If they are removable it is an easy matter to keep them clean. One of the most satisfactory plans is to make the roosts of two by four scantlings, the ends resting on notched cleats at each end of the platform used to catch the droppings. By giving the ends and under sides frequent attention there should be no trouble from lice. If it is preferred to have the ends of the roosts away from the wall, they may be shortened and nailed to boards eight inches wide and long enough to accommodate the required number of roosts. The boards rest on the platform and for cleaning, the entire roost is lifted off.

Hens detest filthy nests and will not lay in them if they can find a better place. Nests nailed to the wall are an abomination, for they afford an excellent hiding place for lice, where it is difficult to get at them. As a rule, we make our nests in sections of three, each nest being fifteen by twelve inches and twelve inches high. They are placed beneath the platform, and, as they have a removable top, it is easy to gather the eggs. As the nest faces the wall, the hens never get into the habit of roosting in them. We examine the nests frequently to make sure they have not become infested with lice. A handful of air sprinkled lime is placed in the bottom of each nest box, and when nesting materials are renewed it is sprinkled with insect powder. By using these precautions we have little trouble with lice or mites.

Feeding Cows.

Cows feed little at night if well fed during the day, and if the stable is well ventilated they are comfortable here as anywhere, and the gain to the manager is considerable.

Portsmouth is having the biggest summer business in its history and the hotels have been unable to take care of the people. The automobile parties coming here by night find considerable trouble in securing accommodations. All local business men report greatly increased receipts and with prospects of a late season.
That revolving door at the post office is a nuisance so far as public approval goes. It is decidedly out of place and if some of the children do not lose an arm or a leg before a month passes it will be a wonder. These kind of doors are not popular in the big cities and Portsmouth does not like it. It may keep a draught out of the postoffice but thus far it has only called forth criticism instead of praise from the public.
Vice President Timothy E. Dwyer of the Boston and Maine has just completed a tour of New Hampshire going over the proposed electric line to the top of Mt. Washington. He was here at The Wentworth, New Castle over night and reports booming among the mountain hotels. He was met by a newspaper man and in speaking of the coast line hereabouts said: "The Wentworth is the beauty spot, it is simply charming and the fine hotel deserves the biggest kind of success. Landlord Priest without doubt conducts one of the finest hotels in New England."
It is reported that John Cutler, the proprietor of the Sea View Hotel at Hampton Beach, has thrown up his liquor license and asked the commission to refund his money covering the remainder of the year. With this report it is said the reason for this step on the part of Mr. Cutler is the result of visits from the inspectors, who object to one thing and another about his business. He claims that he would rather be without a license than be running into an inspector every other day. It is said that the commission has informed him that he cannot get the money but can continue to sell until his term has expired.

LANDLORD CARTER'S WIFE DEAD

Death Came As A Shock To Residents Of Rye This Noon

Mrs. Fannie Webster Carter Philbrick, died today at her home in Rye, aged 59 years, 11 months and 19 days. She was a sister of the late Frank Philbrick, owner of the Farragut case, and a woman well known and liked in the town. Besides her husband she is survived by one daughter.

THERE'S A KICK ON

The barbers will have a close shave on Thursday when they go up against the wine clerks. There is a rumor that Dick Ryan has imported diamond shirts from Digby, N. S., but Dick denies it and says furthermore that after this game the barbers will never again be seen on the local diamond. There seems to be a hitch about the style of uniform for the barbers and two-thirds of the line-up who are veteran firemen want to appear in red shirts. The barbers say that it is not going to be a playout and any "blacksmith" that comes forth with any part of a regalia of a veteran fireman will be annihilated.

FOR CHILDREN'S HOME

The proceeds of the baseball game between the wine clerks and barbers on Thursday will be donated to the Children's Home. This fact, as well as the fun that will follow at the game, should bring out a large number of spectators.

GAMES TO BEGIN EARLIER

Beginning on Monday next the games in the Sunset League will be started at 6 p. m. instead of 6.15. The week following there will be another cut in the time owing to the shortness of the day.

FIFTH DAY OLD HOME WEEK

Eliot Me. Celebration Closes Today

The Old Home Week exercises this year have been of the pleasantest nature. The weather, if warm, has been good for open air meetings and the attendance each day has been good. The greeting of old friends and old schoolmates and teachers, some of whom had not met for forty years, was one of the most pleasing features of the week.

The exercises Wednesday could not fail to please and Thursday the Grange owned the town. The hall was crowded and the program included violin and piano selections by members of Lanier Camp, reading and an address by Mr. Purinton.

The bazaar was very successful, the sale of aprons alone netting over $28, while the ice cream found a most ready sale, the smiles of Old Sol proving a godsend in this case. The supper, typical of the grange, was all that could be desired and the dance in the evening found many devotees of the light fantastic ready to trip despite the heat. The summer people and members of Lanier Camp were out in good numbers and showed their interest in the town and its institutions by helping with hand and purse. The members of the committee have been untiring in their efforts to make the week successful and it is hoped the second annual Old Home Week will be the precursor of many more.

Last night there was a concert in the Congregational church and today sports will close a week of pleasure for both present and former residents of good old Eliot.

The following was the program for the concert at the Congregational church:
Prelude, Delibes
Old French Dance, La Chaux
Valse Courante, La Chaux
Miss Sarah H. Hamilton.
Letha, with violin accompaniment, Booth

Miss M. Klebs.
Miss L. Lauder, accompanist.
Monologue, Mlle. Eugenie Gerlac.
A Birthday, Huntington Woodman
Mrs. Edith Magee Inglis.
Cello solo, Berceuse W. Squire
Mrs. Gail Willis Libbey.

a. Thine, Bohm
b. I Hear You Calling Me, Marshall
c. Till I Wake, Cadman
Miss E. Wielage.
Selections from Kipling, Mlle. Gerlac.
Etude a Flat, Chopin
Nocturne C Sharp Minor, Chopin
Etude de Concert d Flat, Liszt
Miss Hamilton.

E. B. Kinney, piano accompanist.
Thursday was Grange day and the bazaar was by John F. Hill Grange. The grounds were a pretty sight.

In the afternoon the following program was announced by Dr. H. I. Durgin and thoroughly enjoyed by all:
Selection, Orchestra
Reading, Martha Norcross White house of Borwick.

Solo, Mrs. Magee Inglis
Speaker, C. O. Parington of Bowdoinham.
Solo, Miss Wielage
Reading, Miss Whitehouse
Piano solo, Miss Nye
At the finish of the program supper was announced to be served in the banquet hall.
In the evening a hop was given in the hall with Hot's orchestra and was largely attended.

The chairman for each table were as follows: Fancy work, Mrs. Alta Durgin; aprons, Miss Inez Remick; bags, Mrs. J. L. M. Willis; mystery, Mrs. F. Wilmet; ice cream, Maurine Leach; canny, Miss Myrtle Ham; small drinks, Frank Worcester; supper committee, Miss Emma Frye.

Among the recent arrivals in Eliot for the Old Home Week celebration are Major White, president of the New York Life Insurance Company, and family of New York, who arrived in their automobile after touring the White Mountains and vicinity. They are visiting Mrs. White's brother, Mr. Arthur Hanscom of Clover Farm.

THE ALL STARS DEFEATED

The Maplewoods defeated the All Stars this morning on the playground a score of 9 to 3.

The features of the game was the heavy hitting of the All Stars, especially of A. Davis, Loughlin and Rutledge. Lovering of the All Stars pitched great ball, striking out 15 men and allowing but three hits. Lovering made a three base hit.

These teams are to play two games out of three for the junior championship of the city. Each team has won one game each. The deciding game will be played next Wednesday at 10 o'clock. The Maplewoods have lost out two games this season being defeated by the Cubs and the All Stars.

The game this morning was full of excitement. Horan of the Maplewoods received poor support.

BALL GAME SUNDAY

A good game of ball is scheduled for tomorrow (Sunday) on the Fort Stark government reservation at New Castle. The soldiers representing the 156th Company C. A. C. of Fort Constitution will play the Raymond, N. H., independents. The visitors will be accompanied by a large crowd.

COMING IN PAIRS

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pottinger of Willard avenue are receiving an outpouring of congratulations today as a result of a visit from the stock. The ever busy bird presented them with twins of the opposite sex.

NO MORE LIQUOR FOR MAINE

American Express Co. Refuse To Receive Goods Here For Shipment Across The Line

The management of the American Express Company notified local shippers this morning that liquor for Maine would not be received. The order was issued as the result of big seizures made from the company while the liquors were in the cars and at their offices.

POLICE HUNTING FOR LIQUOR

Visit Four Places on Friday Night—A Day Ahead of Time

The liquor squad were out calling on Friday evening when Officers McCaffery, Murphy, Kelley and Philbrick made the rounds and searched the places of Charles Assay, Charles Morse, Harry Titus and Thomas Lynskey.

Nothing was discovered in liquid form in any of the places but a colored man and woman were arrested at the house of Morse and charged with adultery.

BROKE HIS ARM

Mark Neville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Neville of Islington street broke his arm while playing ball Friday. He was taken to his home and Dr. Carty was called and took him to the hospital and assisted by Dr. Eastman reduced the fractured arm. Mark's condition is now reported as resting very comfortable.

Emerson Piano Quality.
Quality in a Piano is absolutely essential, for a poor quality Piano is not a Piano at all. It may be a "furniture piano" if you will, but it is not a musical one—and what is the good of a Piano if it is not musical?
The Emerson Piano seems to grow better every day. The makers of this instrument have lately surpassed themselves. The Pianos that are now coming to us are simply magnificent. The touch, the tone, and the finish are better than ever before.
The more difficult you are to please, the better we shall like it, for you cannot but be pleased with these instruments, yet with all their goodness they are sold for a fair price on easy terms.
